A Kentucky Romance

BY J. E. MURRELL.

CHAPTER VI.

For several weeks Walter and his mother were constantly together, discussing Walter's father, expressing great anxiety for his return, believing that he was living and that only death would finally separate them.

Walter had now been on the plantation sufficient time to know all the servants connected with the premises. It was during the days of slavery, and old man Bartelle was the owner of quite a number of negroes. It was Walter's custom to visit the cabins of the negroes after tea and listen to the old darkeys tell of his mother, how good and kind she was to them. They never knew his father, but for his mother's sake and the sake of her son, they wanted him to return.

Each day a boy was sent to the post-office, returning without a letter from the absent one. Each disappointment increased the anxiety of the mother and son, and often they could be seen weeping as though their hearts would break. While a letter was anxiously expected from Mr. Gifford Walter received regular answers from his mother, to "Aunt" Lizzie. She wrote lovingly, telling him how happy she was over the finding of his mother, and ere long she believed his father would come to him. Walter got much comfort from "Aunt" Lizzie's letters, and it did his mother great good to read them.

Walter was now well acquainted in the neighborhood, and had made quite a number of friends among the young people at Midway. He had been going for the mail several months. One morning in May, 1897, he said to his mother, before starting, "I believe we will hear from father this day." When he reached the post-office he found a letter addressed to his grandfather, mailed at New Orleans. He felt sure that it was from his father and hurried home as quickly as possible. He told his mother that he believed he had the right letter, and he walked into his grandfather's room, his mother following. The old gentleman opened the letter and in an instant he exclaimed: "Viola! your husband, Walter's father, lives, and we will soon have him." The letter read:

"NEW ORLEANS, May 2, '97.
"Mr. James Bartelle,
"Midway, Ky.

"Dear Sir:
"By accident I picked up an old Cincinnati paper this morning, and in glancing over it I saw an advertisement, with your name to it, saying I would be glad to receive at your house. From the advertisement I judge that my beloved wife is living. I have traveled this country over hoping to find her, and finally believing that she was dead, I settled in New Orleans, but not one moment of enjoyment have I experienced since she disappeared from your house a few short months after our marriage. If you still desire to see me answer at once.

"Very truly,
"EUGENE GIFFORD.
"615, 6th Street."

The reading of the letter brought much joy to the Bartelle household. Viola looked ten years younger, and Walter was so enthused with the information that he was to soon see and know his father, that he went over the plantation, telling the glad tidings to all the servants.

A letter went by return mail, telling Mr. Gifford to come as speedily as possible; that Viola was living, and that her anxiety could not be expressed. Travel was slower in those days, and the family calculated that it would likely be two weeks before Eugene could reach his wife's home. In the meantime Mr. St. Clair was detailed to go for "Aunt" Lizzie, and Walter and his mother were be present when Mr. Gifford arrived. In a few days the old lady was driven up to the Bartelle mansion. Walter and his mother were delighted to see her, and for several days they entertained each other with stories of the past and the early approach of Walter's father. "Aunt" Lizzie, speaking to Viola, said: "I knew from the day you landed at my house that there was no scandal attached to you—a mystery that would come out right in the end, and it is a source of much joy to me to know that my predictions have proven true. When I see you and your husband and Walter united the anxiety of my life will have been gratified. I could then return to my humble home in Adair county and live out the remainder of my days in peace and happiness knowing that you and yours were comfortably situated." She was told that she could have a home at the Bartelle residence the remainder of her life if she desired.

"No," said she, "I have a little interest back in the hills, and when I see you all united it will be my duty to return to my humble home. My husband has been buried for many years on a little knoll not far from my house, and when my time comes to go I want to be laid beside him." At this juncture, Walter dashed into the room, saying: "Grandfather believes father will reach home this day." All eyes were immediately turned in the direction of the "big gate," hoping to see a buggy approaching. They did not look but a few minutes until they discovered a vehicle rapidly advancing. Viola's heart was in a flutter. The buggy passed through the gate, and the occupant is now coming hurriedly up the drive. Viola and Walter are outside the house and are making rapid steps to the yard entrance; the vehicle stops, a gentleman alights and in an instant is in the arms of Viola. They embraced each other, and again, when suddenly Viola exclaimed: "Eugene! this is our son whom you have never seen." Then Walter was taken into his father's arms, and presently all three went into the house. Mr. and Mrs. Bartelle were perfectly carried away with Mr. Gifford's appearance, and "Aunt" Lizzie finally shouted with joy.

It was indeed a happy meeting. The husband and wife separated for nearly sixteen years, the husband not knowing that he was a father until his son was introduced to him by his loving wife. The next day after the meeting Eugene related why he left home. He heard that Viola had suddenly disappeared from her home, and that her uncle, Mr. Ben Bartelle, was out looking for her. This almost crazed him, but when he was told that Viola's uncle had returned without any trace of her, he became perfectly desperate and started on the hunt himself. He traveled over nearly all the States, visiting the large cities, and after an unsuccessful search of several years, settled in New Orleans, believing that Viola was dead. He had written a number of letters, but never received an answer. He was working in a large retail store in New Orleans, and that it was a mere accident that he saw the advertisement which brought him home. A gentleman had returned a pair of shoes, wrapped in an old newspaper, and in untying the bundle he discovered the notice. "I am now here," said Mr. Gifford, "a happy man, with a promise to you, Viola and Walter to return to you, until separated by death."

There is but little more to be told. Mr. Bartelle and wife gave Viola the farm and a number of horses and cattle and a large sum of money; property equal to it in value was settled upon Jennie; the old people divided time with their two daughters until removed by death; Walter took to medicine and graduated from a New York University, and after his marriage he located in Georgia, successfully practicing his profession; Mr. St. Clair remained with Mr. Gifford, and Mr. Ben Bartelle found a home with Mr. Newby in Mississippi. "Aunt" Lizzie was substantially removed. She returned to her Adair county home, and some years ago was buried beside her husband, about half-way between Columbia and Old Neatville. People to this day in passing the burying place often remark, "there lies the remains of 'Aunt' Lizzie Sharp, who, in her life time, was known all over this country as a Good Samaritan."

BLOODY TRAGEDY

Occurs in the Crowded Lobby of the Capitol Hotel at Frankfort.

THREE KILLED AND THREE WOUNDED.

Result of an old Feud Between Hon. D. G. Colson and Lieut. Ethelbert Scott.

STRAY BULLETS KILL BYSTANDERS.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 16.—[Special to the Courier-Journal.]—In a pistol encounter in the crowded lobby of the Capitol Hotel today shortly after noon, ex-Congressman David G. Colson and Lieut. Ethelbert Scott fought to a deadly end, a quarrel that originated between them while in camp at Aniston, Ala., during the Spanish-American war. He settled the score at the cost of two other lives beside that of his victim, a painful wound for himself, and serious wounds for three others.

The tragedy came swiftly. Groups of men were lounging about the lobby, in the broad corridor just outside, members of the Legislature, State officials, politicians and women were passing to and from the dining-room, where dinner was being served.

A sharp report sounded over in the south-west corner of the lobby. The loungers started up. The dinner stopped questioning at each other. The buzz of conversation stopped. Instantly came another shot, then a rapid fusillade, as the occupants of the lobby came pouring panic-stricken through the broad doors into the corridor. Behind them in the lobby wisps of powder smoke veiled a handful of frightened men, crowding through the opposite exits to the street or crouching behind pillars. Two men, bleeding every step, came rushing into the corridor, calling for help. Two others were seen over in the southeast corner, one making for the basement, streaming blood from ragged wounds, the other pursuing him relentlessly with his pistol gripped in both hands. Then another shot as the men disappeared down the steps, the sound of a falling body, an instant later still another shot, and another, then—stillness. For the space of a second the crowd paused, peering into the smoke-reathed lobby.

Three Bullets in Demarcus.
Then the smoke lifted and rolled in a heavy cloud against the frescoed ceiling of the lobby and the frightened crowd, not yet comprehending the extent of the tragedy, ventured cautiously at first and then in a surging stream back into the broad lobby, where they beheld stretched across the floor the body of Luther Demarcus, dead, with three bullets through his heart, all lodged within a radius as small as that of a silver dollar.

Scott Hit Seven Times.
Hastening to the balustrade that overlooks the stairway leading to the basement and the bar, they saw the pale upturned face of Ethelbert Scott, dead and bloody from the seven bullet holes and the heavy fall down the stairs.

Those quickest at the head of the stairway saw the retreating figure of Col. Colson, pistol in hand, as he hurriedly passed out the basement door, after firing into the body of his prostrate victim, and went up the street toward the State arsenal.

Others who were hurrying back to the lobby, though not quite as precipitately as they had retreated, butted into Mr. Charles J. Jones and Capt. Ben Golden, who, bleeding profusely from their wounds, were hastening out the rear office doors into the main hall.

"I'm shot. Get a doctor," said Capt. Golden, as he rushed up to ex-Gov. Jas. B. McCreary in the hall, where several women, who were standing at the office door when the shooting began, were hurrying toward the parlor in a great state of excitement.

"Help me to a room," said Mr. Julian, who, with a bullet in his left leg, limped into the hall. He was carried into a room at the lower end of the hall, and there bled to death in twenty minutes.

Harry McEwan, who was shot in the foot, ran into the hall, and was carried to a doctor's office in the basement of the hotel, while crawling up the steps, down which Scott had fallen, was Mr. Redpath, the Chicago drummer, against whom Scott had run.

Such was the tragic scene into which the busy and handsome hotel lobby had been converted—all within a period of two or three minutes.

Eighteen Shots Fired.
Of the eighteen shots fired in less than two minutes, thirteen landed in the bodies of the participants and several bystanders, resulting in the painful wounding of four others.

Colson surrendered to an officer and was placed in jail.

Nervous Prostration.
I had nervous trouble for years, which at times completely prostrated me and made life not worth living. I tried many physicians and no end of nerve and other remedies without relief. Mr. M. J. Crews, merchant, May, Iowa, persuaded me to try Morley's Sarsaparilla and Iron. The very first bottle went to the right spot, for I felt a complete change and now, after using six bottles, I am in perfect health. Mrs. Lizzie Fisher.

Maj. John F. Stone, a prominent banker and lawyer, of Oklahoma, was shot and killed while foreclosing a mortgage.

It has been demonstrated repeatedly in every state in the Union and in many foreign countries that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a certain preventive and cure for croup. It has become the universal remedy for that disease. M. V. Fisher, of Liberty, Va., who repeats what has been said around the globe when he writes: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for many years and always with perfect success. We believe that it is not only the best cough remedy, but that it is a cure for croup. It has saved the lives of our children a number of times." This remedy is for sale by M. Craven.

James Wilson, of Laporte, Ind., beat his wife into insensibility because she contributed to a church fund.

Brave Men Fall
Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. J. W. Gardner, of Idaho, Ind., says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he doubts whether he lives or dies. It gave me new strength and a good appetite. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50¢ each. T. E. Paul's drug store. Every bottle guaranteed.

Others who were hurrying back to the lobby, though not quite as precipitately as they had retreated, butted into Mr. Charles J. Jones and Capt. Ben Golden, who, bleeding profusely from their wounds, were hastening out the rear office doors into the main hall.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 14.

As yet the elusive Aguinaldo has not been headed off.

The war in the Philippines has not been settled and may not be for many years.

All talk of a political battle at Frankfort has died out since the last fight.

Several of our Republican friends from this town have been to Frankfort, recently and they all got back in the full belief that Mr. Goebel will be Governor.

Several gentlemen of Columbia who are Republicans in principle and others who voted against the Democratic ticket, have recently returned from Frankfort. They state there is no doubt but Mr.
Goebel and the other Democratic candidates will win in the contest.

Last Tuesday evening the people throughout the State received the news of the deadly conflict in our Capital city, the participants being the Hon. D. C. Coleman, of Middleborough, and Elibert Scott, of Somerset. After the smoke had cleared away three men were found dead and four others wounded. Scott was killed and two men who were not engaged in the fight, while Coloso was shot in the left arm. The fight was the result of bad blood existing between the participants, and while it is unfortunate that such things happen, yet in this tragedy the most appalling feature is the killing accidentally of two distinguished parties—Messrs. Demere and Julian, and the wounding of three others. It is claimed that Coloso and Scott fired simultaneously, but that has not yet been established. Mr. Coloso was arrested and lodged in jail.

Some weeks ago the question as to whether this year was the closing of the 19th century or the beginning of the 20th caused considerable discussion, but now it has ceased to be of interest, and after all the many little debates on the question have been silenced, we have but very few living in the 20th century as they claim. It was quite amusing for some time to hear the arguments and see the mile post markers that were made to prove that Jan. 1, 1900 was the beginning of the twentieth, but facts and figures coincide to upset their theory and but few of the 20th century people can be found. The fact that 100 years complete make a century, therefore 1900 complete years make 19 centuries is a standard to those who are now as they think, living in a new century.

Here's to the band whose living head of time—we'll join you in the century business next year.

How little Mr. McKinley's promises to furnish any desired information to Congress meant was shown when the Senate, under orders from the White House, voted down Senator Peigler's amendment to the Hoar resolution of inquiry, asking that the Senate be furnished a copy of Mr. McKin-ley's instructions to the Commissioners who negotiated the treaty of peace with Spain. That information would, there are good reasons to believe, show that there is a contradiction in the policy Mr.

McKinley claimed to have when he gave those instructions and that followed by him since the treaty was negotiated, and in order to avoid making a public exhibition of himself by going back on his word, he called on the Republican majority in the Senate to save him and his orders have been obeyed.

The Senate has agreed to vote on the Gold Standard bill Feb. 15.

Acting Governor Taylor shows
all the signs of an expert in pardoning his friends and political allies. Last week he granted pardons to two of his fellow countrymen before the law had been applied, save in their arrest. Later he pardoned two men from the mountains who had been tried and placed in the work-house, his plea being that they had not received a fair trial. Then, again, he pardoned a Railroad Company for violating the Separate Coach Law in advance of a trial. If methods of this kind are to be instituted, why need we laws or punishment as a penalty for their violation? It is our opinion that some reasonable restriction should be placed on the pardoning power of a Governor. As it is in this matter a Governor has all the right and power of any ruler in any form of Government beyond the dark ages to the present.

There should be stronger reasons for taking law breakers out of the custody of local civil authorities than that of personal acquaintance and partisan purposes. The law ought to be supreme in matters pertaining to the action and government of every man of whatever creed or faith, and we see no reason why Mr. Taylor should pardon men guilty of charges under the law before they have been convicted. The action of the Governor in these matters seem to be purely partisan and ought to be condemned by every good citizen regardless of politics.

John R. Johnson, Columbia.

Mr. Williams, who is connected with the Green River Railroad Company, was here last week on his return from Clinton county. He talked to several gentlemen about the proposed road, and made this statement: "I am willing to obligate the company to build the road to Columbia for $50,000 and the right of way, no payment to be made until the rolling stock is put on."

He also stated that the machine shops would be located at Columbia. Further, he stated that Columbia would be the crossing of two roads, one of which would start from Hodgenville, the terminus being a point in Tennessee. Some of our citizens are of the opinion that the location of the shops at Columbia would be worth $50,000 to the people of Adair county. The matter will be investigated and what is best for the county, we believe will be done.

$50,000 is a large sum of money to be made by subscription, but when you take into consideration that there are thirty or forty men in Adair county, who are worth over $10,000, it looks like the amount could be gotten up.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medicine fraternity. Catarrh being a local and internal disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surface of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and gives the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature to do its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative power, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure, send for full testimonials.

Sarah Cartwright, a colored woman nearly 90 years old, living in the Tarter neighborhood, fell in the fire one day last week and narrowly escaped being burned to death.

The New Railroad.

Mr. Williams, who is connected with the Green River Railroad Company, was here last week on his return from Clinton county. He talked to several gentlemen about the proposed road, and made this statement: "I am willing to obligate the company to build the road to Columbia for $50,000 and the right of way, no payment to be made until the rolling stock is put on."

He also stated that the machine shops would be located at Columbia. Further, he stated that Columbia would be the crossing of two roads, one of which would start from Hodgenville, the terminus being a point in Tennessee. Some of our citizens are of the opinion that the location of the shops at Columbia would be worth $50,000 to the people of Adair county. The matter will be investigated and what is best for the county, we believe will be done.

$50,000 is a large sum of money to be made by subscription, but when you take into consideration that there are thirty or forty men in Adair county, who are worth over $10,000, it looks like the amount could be gotten up.

Tribute of Respect.

Glenfork, Lodge, F. & A. M., No. 528, passes the following resolutions on the death of Brother W. B. Montgomery:

Whereas, The Grand Master above in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst, Brother W. B. Montgomery, who departed this life January 15, 1900, in the 79th year of his age, and has called him to the Grand Lodge above where all good Masons hope to at last arrive.

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Montgomery his family has lost a kind husband and father; the community an upright and valuable citizen and the Lodge a much respected friend and brother.

2nd. That we, as Masons, extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

3rd. That this Lodge wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

4th. That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Lodge and a copy of the same be presented to the bereaved family and furnished to the Adair County News and Columbia Spectator for publication.

Fraternally submitted,

Z. T. WILLIAMS,

In the case of Marietta Lester, of color, vs. J. W. Hurt, Sheriff, etc., the defendant filed a motion to strike out the amended petition filed since last court by the plaintiff which was overruled. The defendants then demurred to the amended petition because it did not state a cause of action against Mr. Hurt and his bondsmen. This demurrer was sustained, and the court dismissed the action so far as it affected Mr. Hurt and his bondsmen. The plaintiff appealed from the decision, and the question as to Mr. Hurt's liabilities for the acts of J. Williams, while acting as deputy sheriff, will be settled in the Court of Appeals. This is the second time these have appeared and the second time it has been defeated and so far as we are able to learn there is no ground whatever for action against Mr. Hurt.

The firm of Price & Powell dissolved the first day of January by mutual consent. Dr. Price will continue the drug business at the same stand. All parties indebted to the old firm are requested to call and settle. Also all persons indebted to J. N. Price are positively requested to fork over what they owe him.

Eld. Lawrence Williams, who has been pastor of the Christian church at Glasgow for the past year, has accepted a call from the Church at Campbellsville. We commend him to the citizens of Taylor county as a gentleman worthy of his calling. He is a good speaker and enjoys the reputation of being a splendid pastor. His home is in Adair county.

It has been demonstrated repeatedly in every State in the Union and in many foreign countries that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a certain preventive and cure for cough. It has become the universal remedy for that disease. M. V. Fisher, of Liberty, W. Va., only repeats what has been said around the globe when he writes: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for many years and always with perfect success. We believe that it is not only the best cough remedy, but that it is a sure cure for croup." It has saved the lives of our children a number of times. This remedy is for sale by R. Craven.

SMALL-POX.

After having been entirely stamped out, this troublesome disease has again made its appearance in our county. The Health Board wishes to again call the attention of the people to the fact that the only safety lies in vaccination. Let everybody be vaccinated and the danger will be at an end.

The Health Board does not want to oppress the people, but to save them. The law makes it our duty to suppress all contagious diseases, and gives us the largest discretion in the manner of doing it. If, then, the people want smallpox suppressed, let them give us their cooperation and aid assistance. Don't make the impression that there is no smallpox in the county, for there certainly is. Try to induce everybody to be vaccinated.

The new Board has been organized and the following are the names of the members:

W. T. Grison, M. D., President.
U. L. Taylor, M. D., Secretary.
Willie Blair, M. D., Treasurer.
Z. T. Gabbert, M. D.

Let the people give us their moral support, and save the county of a heavy expense.

By order of the Board of Health.

U. L. TAYLOR, Health Officer

ELABORATE EXHIBIT

Chief of Weather Bureau Agent's Plans for Paris Exposition.

It has been decided by the United States government to send American visitors to the Paris exposition in 1900 informed as to the conditions of the weather in this country during the position period. Willis Moore, chief of the weather bureau, has given orders for the preparation of a special exhibit of his department to be shipped to the Paris exposition. Prof. F. Marvin, chief of the instrument division, has been assigned by Chief Moore to attend to the packing of the exhibit.

Thorough demonstrations of the system will be given for the benefit of foreigners as well as Americans. The weather bureau being at the exposition will have, among other things, a complete set of instruments such as are found at every weather station in this country. The workings of the forecasting division will be demonstrated, and to do this fictitious reports will be made out, from which a prognostication will be made in the regular way.

Apparatus employed to take and coast stations to display storm signals will be set up, as well as a collection of maps indicating special atmospheric climatic conditions found in the United States. A large number of photographs will also be displayed. The different types of kites used by the bureau for scientific researches will be on exhibition, as will also a kite meteorograph, a delicate bit of mechanism invented by Prof. Marvin for determining the humidity, pressure and temperature of the air and the velocity of the wind.

The people around Lafayette, Tippecanoe county, Ind., will also be given additional delivery service. In Iowa routes will be established at Cedar Falls, Blackhawk county; Dubuque, Dubuque county; and Steamboat Rock, Hardin county, covering a territory of 137 square miles in all.

PASTES PAPER OVER MOUTH.

Unique and Startling Method of a New York Teacher in Punishing a Pupil for Whispering.

Because an older girl accused her of whispering during the absence of the teacher from the schoolroom Virginia Chamberlain, nine years old, a pupil in the public school at 70 Roosevelt street, New York city, was punished by her teacher, Miss Costello, who pasted a large piece of paper over her mouth. "That'll keep you from talking," is what the teacher said to her. At the remark after she had pasted the little girl's mouth shut and had commanded her to take her place in the schoolroom, warning her not to try to remove the paper.

The little girl sat at her desk for more than an hour, gagged with the paper bandage, which was glued tight about her mouth, the boys and girls around her uttering with amusement. Her brown eyes filled with tears as she thought of her humiliation.

It is said by some of the pupils that the girl had not whispered at all. At the little girl fled home, and the paper was removed with some difficulty.

THE PERFECT TENEMENT.

Prizes Offered to Architects for Plans of a Building Best Adapted for Needs of Low Wage Earners.

One of the features of the tenement house exhibition to be held in New York and other cities during the country next January will be a competition by architects for plans of model tenement houses. The purpose of this competition, as announced by the tenement house committee of the Charity Organization society is to stimulate the interest of the architects in the planning of houses for low wage earners, and to show that such buildings, erected with the object of obtaining a maximum of light and air, can be made to pay the owners. For the best plan a prize of $500 is offered. Prize plans will be exhibited at the Paris exposition in 1900.

One Tended to Flowers.
The inventor of the maxim gun recently admitted that in his devotion to the invention of machines to make war more terrible and consequently more frequent, he had sacrificed time and money that might have been more profitably employed in inventions for popular use. The Boston Globe thinks that perhaps his conscience is not quite easy.

National Insurance.
Norwegian statesmen are planning a system of national insurance to protect people unacquainted to earn a livelihood.

A private letter from eastern Kentucky tells of a peculiar incident in Wolfe county. Frank Miller was at the point of death after a long illness. His brother John was offering up a prayer for him, hoping some day to realize that death was near at hand. In the course of his prayer John Miller said: "O Lord, I am willing to give up my life, if it be required, to save my brother," and a moment later John Miller had fallen dead. His brother died the night of the same day and the two were buried in the same grave. The brother's prayer was answered, as Frank Miller shortly before his death confessed faith in the Lord.

TO BUILD A GREAT SCHOOL.

William L. Elkins Will Establish a Magnificent College for Women in Philadelphia.

Although William L. Elkins, the Philadelphia, New York and Chicago traction magnate, refuses as yet to talk of the project, his close friends say he proposes to make magnificent financial provision for the founding in Philadelphia of a woman's college on as broad a plan as that of Stephen Girard, who so many years ago founded the now marvellously successful Girard college for boys in Philadelphia.

Mr. Elkins has for years been considering the details of a plan to found an institution of care and learning, and it is now said that he has fully decided on establishing a college for girls which will in every way compare favorably with Girard's famous charity. Negotiations are now in progress for a fitting site on the outskirts of the city.

It is only in his desire to give his active city an institution which will be of really national importance, but it is his aim as well to see that his desires are carried out to the letter, and for that reason he will perfect all the details while he is still vigorous in mind and body.

It will cost to endow such a charity at most a matter of conjuncture, though on the scale indicated it must amount to millions. It is pointed out that girl orphans have no such advantages as are enjoyed by boys under the Girard will, and it is the chance to supply this badly needed institution that Mr. Elkins has embraced. The institution is to be entirely nonsectarian, but it is understood that the few articles of the Girard will which forbid all students from entering the college will not be a part of the Elkins plan.

PRIESTESS OF ANARCHY.

Emma Goldman Leaves This Country in Disguise—Says There Is More Liberty in Russia.

The high priestess of anarchy, Emma Goldman, has left America for good. Under an assumed name she has sailed for England. She has been necessary and dissatisfied for a long time with the results or lack of results of her talking, and she has finally come to the conclusion that the United States is not so adapted to the propagation of her views. To a few friends she explained her reasons for leaving.

"In my experience with the American workingman, during more than ten years, I have found him to be the most contemptible creature on earth. Even the ignorant Russian peasant, down to earth and stupid as he is, will revolt some time, when the outrages committed upon him become great."

"Here, in this country, the government is more despotic than that of the czar."

"Talk of liberty! Why, there is more of that in Russia than you have here. I have been imprisoned for a year because I insisted on my right to talk in New York city, and in scores of other places the police would not let me enter the hall I had hired to deliver a speech in."

THE RICHES OF ALASKA.

Capt. Abercrombie, After Three Years' Exploration, Is Confident of Future of Territory.

Capt. William B. Abercrombie, who has spent three years in Alaskan exploration and who has just surveyed an all-American route to the Klondike, returned through New York on his way to Washington to make his report to Secretary Root. He said, "The main reason for the expedition is the opening of the Klondike region for the American miner."

"During the coming year there will be numerous enterprises embarked in Alaska and especially in the Yukon country. The country to be opened to settlement will support thousands of people."

"The water is good, the soil fertile, game abundant, except in the Copper River valley, and all the other great sources as are raised in Siberia, may be raised along the line of this all-American route."

NEW TREPHINING SYSTEM.

Used with Success on a Young Chicagoan—Pain Saw the Difference.

A new method of trephining was used for the first time in Chicago a few days ago at the Undergraduate hospital, where a large section of the skull was removed to permit the excision of a virus. The patient was Frank T. Gordon, a carpenter. He was suffering from epileptic fits, but had had none since the operation and Dr. F. C. Schaefer, the operating surgeon, has strong hopes of his permanent recovery.

For the trephining four holes were bored in the skull at the corners of a square. A very thin wire saw was then introduced under the skull and coming out the openings. Then the bone was sawed upward on three sides but only partly through on the fourth, which acted as a hinge. After the operation the bone was lowered over the opening.

"How much will you give me for this skull?" asked a shabbily-dressed private tutor, as he walked into a second-hand bookseller's and produced the book named.

"Oh, I ain't worth much," answered the bookseller, as he turned over the leaves with an air of amused indifference. "There's no demand for 'em. I bought one the other evening, and it's outside on the stall now. There's no demand for 'em at all. I shall think I've done well if I get eightpence for the one I have now."

All right, here's your eightpence. This is the bone you had outside," gaily answered the tutor, as he threw down the money and skipped out of the shop.—London Tri-Bita.

The Hard Part.

It is easy enough to buy a lot of things you do not want. The difficulty comes in having only a few actually need.—Philadelphia Times.

"A young man came into our store yesterday suffering from a severe attack of cramp colic," writes B. F. Hess, miller and general merchant, Dickey's Mountain, Pa. "He had tried various home remedies without relief. As I had used Chamberlain's Pain Expeller and Diarrhoea Remedy I gave him a dose and it soon brought him out all right. I never saw a fellow so relieved." Sold by M. Craven.

A loving cup made from 70,000 din mosty the gifts of children was sent to Admiral Dewey last week.

M. Bell, Jopka.

Mr. Quay is finding some trouble in getting back into the United States Senate.

I want to tell the people who suffer from rheumatism and sciatica know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm relieved me after a number of other medicines and a doctor had failed. It is the best liniment I have ever known of.—J. A. DODSON, Alpharetta, Ga. M. Shoumans have been cured of rheumatism by this remedy. One application relieves the pain. For sale by M. Craven.

BOMBARDED.

A Peaceable Virginia Town Lately the Object of Warlike Attack.

A ripple of excitement was caused at the war department recently by the announcement that the little town of Snowden, Va., on the banks of the Potomac, had been bombarded by United States soldiers. It was actually true. Eight-inch shells, fired from siege guns, shrieked throughout the town and caused everyone to seek refuge in the basements of their houses. The artillery of Fort Foote were ordered recently to do target practice with the new siege guns. A target was placed two miles below the fort, and about 200 yards from the Virginia shore.

Snowden, one-half mile below, was in the direct line of fire. The officers in charge did not reckon on the shipping propensities of shells striking water at an angle. The first thing that Snowden knew was that it was being bombarded more terrifically than any city was ever bombarded during the civil war. Word was instantly sent to the war department to stop the target practice. The department instantly complied, but before they could reach Fort Foote the bombardment of Snowden had been resumed, and the populace again fled for their cellars. No one was hurt in town, though one barn was struck. The inhabitants are digging up the shells as souvenirs.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Will Prove Their Rals.

A writer in the German scientific periodical Prometheus declares that one indulgence in tobacco will prove the ruin of South American peoples. Not only do children of two or three years smoke all day long, but mothers have been seen trying to quiet their babies by putting cigars in their mouths.
